

2016 Census Update: Population

Burlington’s 2016 population is 183,314, an increase of 7,535 or 4.3% since 2011. This growth rate places Burlington above Hamilton, but below Oakville, Milton, Halton Region, Ontario, and national rates. In terms of regional population growth Burlington grew the least at 7,535, contributing 16% towards regional growth. Milton experienced the greatest growth with an increase of 25,766 or 31% since 2011, translating to 55% of regional growth. A key change is Burlington’s growth being below the provincial and national rates for the first time compared to previous census periods. The 2016 population is approximately 10,000 people fewer than the 192,294 estimated by MoneySense (Environics), which used a 1.6% annualized growth rate for Burlington compared to Burlington’s actual growth rate of 0.86%.
